FREE FROM MALARIA.

In the fall of 1884 I was taken with a case of malarial-fever, which prostrated me both body and mind. I was drugged after the old fashion with mercury and other mineral mixtures, but with no good results. My health was shattered and my energy gone. My legs and feet would swell, and I nad what everybody thought was dropsy. These symptoms alarmed me, and I was ready to grasp at any remedy suggested. A friend advised me to try swift's Specific. I procured three bottles and commenced its use. The swelling soon subsided. I have taken the three bottles, which have made a perfect cure, and I feel like a new man to-day. There never was a more meritorious medicine offered to suffering humanity. It has wrought wonders for me. Willis Jones. Leedury, Lee county, Ga., March 11, 1885. For sale by all druggits.

Fitzbugh Lee. NORFOLK, September 4, 1885. streets to-day by a rencontre at the Norfolk and Western depôt between Cangressman James D. Brady, of the Petersburg district, and Mr. John W. H. Porter, editor of the Portsmouth Enterprise. Mr. Porter went to the depot to look for Colonel Brady, and found him in the ladies' car of the train about leaving for Petersburg. Porter asked Brady to walk out on the platform, when the latter refused, whereupon Porter commenced the assault by striking Brady in the face and hitting at him with a heavy cane, the cane striking Joe Brady, the Colonel's son. Before Brady could do much, except to strike Porter with a came once, several of his friends present pitched into Porter, and the conductor of the train and Policeman Roberts appearing about the same time, the fight ended. No arrests were made, and Brady left for Petersmade, and Brady lett for Peters-burg and Porter for Portsmouth. The difficulty grew out of an editorial in the Enterprise on the 6th of July re-flecting on Brady's private character, and a severely personal reply to the same in a circular distributed throughout this section the early part of the week. Colonel Brady arrived here on Tuesday to superintend nominating meetings held in Norfolk county on Wednesday and Thursday. There are a number of versions of the affair, but

A FALSE SIGNAL GIVEN. While the injured firemen were raised from the shattered ladder the chief in command sent out a second alarm for reinforcements, and also the terrible call for "all ambulances," which is an nounced by twenty-five taps. By some error in working the switchboard at Fireman's Hall the engines and ambulances were sent to the corner of Eighteenth street and Fourth avenue-nearly half a mile distant from the accident. The mistake was quickly discovered by the firemen and the ambulance-driver for of this the students themselves could furnish an abundant supply. But he should be purely secular in what he had to say. It came through Adams Express Company, and was taken to the Planters National Bank for collection, subject, of course, to the usual restrictions and regulations of the express company. When the check was presented at the bank it was seen that it was drawn by R. H. M. Harrison, of Richmond, for $915, and made payable to the order of Freeman J. Carter, who gave the express company

He had held out faithful to the end—to the last month; yea, to the last day. His apprenticeship ended Thursday. What an example to the other boys was this.

The president also presented to John a Bible, urging its claims upon him. On the fly-leaf of the book was written : who examined him.

All three were placed in Ward 8, of Directors of the Male Orphan Asylum, as a testimonial of the high appreciation awarded him by the superintendent of this asylum, and also by the superintendent of the factory, that he had been faithful in 'all things.' Every one seemed delighted with the occasion, and no doubt the good effect of this entertainment will be felt by the larger boys in the factory who are now approaching their majority. It is well to say that the temptation presented to a boy to quit his trade when he can make in Baltimore or Philadelphia $10 to $12 a week, while at the asylum he gets only his board and clothes, is very great, and many cannot resist it. The president promised that the next boy who "graduated in character" would also have an ovation.

> Sea Fruit. Succulent bivalves, toothsome crabs, and the finest of salt-water fish can be had, right on the sea-shore, at a very small cost by any one who will take the Sunday train leaving the Chesapeake and Ohio depot at 8 o'clock for Newport's News and Old Point. It is considered that oyster-eating can now be indulged in with propriety, and the best place to get them is in the vicinity of the oyster-beds. The Sunday train carries you there at the small cost of $1.50 for a round-trip ticket to Newport's News and $1.85 to Old Point station. Bearing this in mind, therefore, he should not preach to them nor moralize, for of preaching and moralizing there was no lack on this hill. Nor should he undertake flights of oratory, nor rounded periods of flowery and poetic language, for of this the students themselves be given unless full notes had been taken. The subject was handled with considerable force and illustration. The students were warned against idleness most earnestly, and it was impressed without the most faithful and painstaking labor. They must work if they would win. The address was well re-ceived, and at its conclusion the president announced that a schedule work was mapped out on the bulletin-board, and that the students would meet the professors to-morrow morning to have their work assigned.

When Mr. Barnes took charge of this church some years ago it was comparatively weak, and was able to employ a preacher only one fourth of his time. It is now one of the few churches outside of Richmond of the Dover Association that employs a pastor his whole time. This is the distinction between a preacher and a pastor as made at the last Pover Association. Mr. Barnes commences his next pastoral year on the 1st of October in the county of Middlesex.
